rubles and started off in a northerly direction. We had not proceeded a mile before we came to what was undoubtedly the head of a shallow river which emptied at one end into Lake St. Martin. Right across its mouth stood a tall, slender column of ice. "By Jove, Nitch," exclaimed Kook, "but this is the biggest heaver dam I have seen." It was 250 feet long, 7 feet wide and (at one time) 7 feet high; moreover, instead of running up and down the rig it ran straight across its grassy ground bed led directly to the sea lake. The afternoon was very hot and we looked for water, but could find none. Signs of game became very frequent as we travelled onward, especially moose tracks, and once we caught sight of a family of muskrats. In the evening there were many in immense quantities under the tamaracs. "Are you a good shot, Swaps?" I enquired. "Ah, yes, but I can shoot nothing," he answered. "Boy I'm so 'used' to shooting bear, I don't have to shoot anything else. I allow you'd better try your hand at it now, or you'll lose some minutes of this aboriginal job of his. At sundown, having gone several miles out of our way in an unsuccessful search for water, I dug a small hole in the centre of a dried swamp. The hole quickly filled up with clear water, and we drank heartily from it, and made into tea. But the tea was simply nauseous. So we swallowed large quantities of cyberberries and skunkberries, grew about as you in "elegant profusion," taking the dewy air with their delicate stone expanse extending under the chert. While the alabaster walls were lined with clusters of geyser crystals. Indian hunters upon viewing this phenomenon had called it "the report," and three or four legends were told of the great power and expedition of finding silver ore, but they discovered nothing but gypsum and "moss," they called the cleavable gypsum crystals.

Upon the surface of the hills were strewn great profusion of granite and limestone boulders, the latter being of a yellow color and clayey texture and containing a great variety of fossils. There was also a small percentage of ordinary lake Manitoba limestone boulders. After wandering about for a few hours Iake called my attention to a small hole in the side of a hill, and I went to go to the lake camp to find the way accordingly made tracks, but darkness had fallen and I was unable to find the hole and reached the lakeshore, and Iake insisted that we should camp beside the bleached skeleton of an abandoned Red River stagecoach. I was not at all certain of the security from the presence of track animals, and I suggested that if I could find a good place to camp, I would like to come to be come to terrify us from their rightful stamping grounds, we would turn one of the wheels, a couple of creases

In Russia, at the same period, the noses of smokers were cut off. The powers ecclesiastical were strongly opposed to the new habit, and Popes Urban VIII. and Innocent X. thundered in turn against the terrible vice of smoking. The papal thunders, however, proved powerless against the charms of St. Peter's tobacco. Although there was much reason to think that these thunders were directed against the custom of smoking and snuffing in general, Urban excommunicated all who should be guilty of so unbecoming a practice; and later, Innocent X. solemnly excommunicated all who should take snuff or tobacco in St. Peter's church at Rome.

A THRILLING STORY OF CHINESE TREACHERY.

CHAPTER XI.

Chiu-chin-wa appeared to be unimpaired by his suspicions of misfortune had preceded his groundings.

He hastened to explain. I need not give his explanation in full. The following is the essence of what he had to say:

After leaving me he and the guide had promised, as arranged, into the city. The half-parted company shortly after passing the gate, the guide going in one direction to purchase my prospective clothing, Chiu-chin-wa in the other to seek out future

The guide, who caught some of our words, notwithstanding that we spoke quickly, so that he might not understand, looked up as Chin-chin wa again addressed him in his own tongue, as though he already knew what burden we were about to lay upon him.

Town & Country Callings.

—The Masonic fraternity of Vancouver are to have a Masonic temple to cost $60,000.

—Mr. A. M. McFarlane predicts a very large migration from Ontario to the Territories this spring.

—Mr. Wm. Brydon has been elected a member of the Council of the Pharmaceutical Association of the North-West Territories.

—Miss K. McCannell, accompanied by her two little nieces, arrived on Thursday morning from Ontario, where they have spent the winter.

—Mr. Thomas Johnston returned from Palmerston, Ont., on Sunday morning. Much to the surprise of his many friends he is still a bachelor, but in other respects doing quite well.

—Mr. John McNeill, of Moosemin, D.D.G.M., paid Qu'Appelle Masonic Lodge an official visit on Thursday night last, and delivered a very able and instructive address on "The duties of Masons," which was highly appreciated.

—The first party of immigrants for the season arrived on Monday, Mr. Wm. Capling and family, of Wallace Co., Ont., Thomas Watt and Henry Scott, of Palmerston. They brought a car load of fine horses, and will begin farming operations as soon as spring opens.

—It is about time we heard something definite about the immigration scheme proposed at the last meeting of the Council. The season is now open, and if anything is to be done there is no time to lose. Efforts made at the close of the season will prove about as effectual as the fall operations of the Wood Mountain and Qu'Appelle Railway.

—Mr. Haultain, M.L.A., returned on Monday from Ottawa. The Government, he says, has promised to change the North-West Act so as to clearly define the position of the North-West Assembly Cabinet as advisors of the Lieutenant-Governor. This arrangement will place the Executive in the position they should have been recognized as holding long ago.

—The Fort Qu'Appelle stage team had a runaway on Monday. While the driver was leaving the mail in the post office, the horses became frightened and made a furious run around the block. As they came to the corner of Mr. Caswell's store they ran over a sleigh standing on the street and suddenly came to a stop. No serious damage resulted from the runaway except the breaking of the sleigh box. Had they run into the herd of cattle that monopolized the sidewalk in front of the Main Street livery things might have been otherwise.

—Dr. Canthow and Mr. Chas. McDougall won the Leland House Cup in the team competition, on Tuesday last, against Messrs. Beauchamp and McDonald. The game was most exciting and close all the way through. At the finish of the thirteenth end they tied. The final end was so close that without measuring it could not be determined who had won, but when the rule was applied it was found that the Dr. and mate had by about half an inch the best of it. Shortly after the contest the victors were seen admiring their hard earned trophy.

—St. Patrick's Day was duly celebrated here by the Irish element of our population, and by various who claimed for many and varied reasons a most friendly interest in the Emerald Isle and its people. The commemoration of the day was observed in a quiet way. Early in the morning one of our citizens, who claims the 17th of March as his birthday, without much difficulty infused a patriotic feeling in the bosoms of those who gathered around to wish him many returns of the day. In the evening a very spirited curling game was played between an Irish and a Scotch rink, which was pronounced by many to be the most friendly game of the season, resulting in a victory for the sons of the heather by one point.

—The facts that have come to light since our last issue in reference to the sudden departure of D. Campbell, M.L.A., and J.P. of Whitecourt, reveal the most studied piece of rascality that has been perpetrated in the history of this country. Up to a short time ago Campbell was looked upon as a straightforward respectable man, and was entrusted with the funds of many organizations, which he systematically robbed of funds. It is believed that he managed to escape with about three thousand dollars, taken from the Post Office, Agricultural Society, Foresters' Society, Farmers' Institute, and School Board, besides borrowing from many citizens such sums as he could by any means get hold of. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, and it is to be hoped that this unworthy Justice of the Peace may speedily be captured, extradited and brought to justice.

—A curling will soon be abandoned for other games, would it not be well to arrange a match that would enable all curlers to participate, and play for a supper to wind up the season?

—After looking at the menu set before those who were present at the banquet in Winnipeg on St. Patrick's Day, we cannot wonder that there is an agitation against the French language in this country. Imagine a hungry Irishman puzzling over the following: "Timbales de foie gras, Lagarde," and at a loss to determine whether it was the name of a dish of meat or a death warrant, particularly when he sees in the preceding line the mysterious appendage "a la Windsor" attached to the potatoes, the only word on the bill that he is able to read.

INDIAN HEAD.

The following notice has been prevented from appearing earlier, owing to pressure on our space:—
It is our painful duty to announce the sudden demise of George P. Murray, merchant, of this town, which has cast a deep gloom over the community. Deceased returned from a trip to the coast on Sunday, the 20th inst., and was on Tuesday evening with influenza of the lungs, which terminated fatally on Monday, the 26th inst. The subject of this obituary was the seventh son of the late John Murray, of Malton, Inverness County, Cape Breton. After completing his education at Dalhousie College, he went west to his elder brother in the mercantile business at Moosemin, which he carried on for ten years, when, owing to close confinement he became ill, and remained so until he came west, arriving at Indian Head in 1893. In the following year, he, in partnership with Edward Brooks, opened a general store, which they carried on for four years, and at the end of that time Mr. Brooks retired from the business to engage in agricultural pursuits north of the town. Although deceased possessed much financial ability, it was often put to a severe test in meeting the demands of his creditors in consequence of the comparative poverty of the early settlers and fluctuating nature of a large percentage of the population in the early history of this municipality. On the 18th of November, 1897, the ruthless hand of death snatched from him the companion of his life, but, notwithstanding that and other serious losses, he, by his strict industry and good disposition, had succeeded far beyond his most sanguine expectations in establishing a lucrative business, and also in the acquisition of a considerable amount of real property. Being of a generous and sympathetic nature, he was always ready to help those in trouble or in want of assistance in any form. Anyone with him invariably spoke louder than words. He was a member of the Municipality for many years, but resigned the position in order to have more time to devote to his rapidly increasing business. He was elected trustee for several years, always earning deep interest in the cause of education. As a member of the Curling Club he was held in high esteem so much so that a costly wreath had been procured and placed on the casket, containing the mortal form of him who in the main an active and natural member. The club also passed a resolution of condolence, which was forwarded to the family and other relatives of the deceased. The funeral, which was postponed owing to the arrival from the coast of his two daughters and the sister of the deceased, took place to-day (March 26th), the procession being the largest of the kind ever witnessed at Indian Head. The surviving members of the family, consisting of two young daughters, have the sympathy of the community at large in their bereavement. They passed away from this earthly scene at the age of 45 years a man who was highly esteemed by all who knew him, and who, a short time ago, was in good health, today he is a tenant of the tomb, such is the common lot of Adam's fallen progeny.

A PEN PICTURE OF BLAKE.
The Pall Mall Budget gives the following pen picture of Mr. Blake, M.P.:—

His appearance is shabby. He has a straw wig of hair curled over his forehead. His face is clean shaven, his eyes are spectacled; his shoulders square; and his features somewhat. His hands are thrust into the lapels of his trousers; in his right he holds a pocket of his notes. It would seem to be easy to make a speech in the Irish "canard" fashion—Mr. Blake may be taken as typical. You have to read up your own copy of the paper, and take notice of his latest utterances. Then you get up and speak. This was the plan Mr. Blake adopted. His personality pleased fairly, M.P. of course; but no one else very much. Much was said in an incoherent (though he said he was of excellent accuracy) way, crystallized in the phrase "an absolutely unaccountable term." His notion of wit is fully illustrated by his statement that he liked trousers in Acts of Parliament, and would they never contained what was not true.

To the Editor of The Province.
Dear Sir.—Are the people who rescue orphan boys off the streets of large cities in the United Kingdom, and who undertake to find them comfortable homes in Canada, aware of the records of comfort that we can show within the last year or two? I think a sample ought to be published. I read in the PROGRESS of a man, who had one of these boys, being committed for trial for starving and freezing the lad, but as I never read any more of it I fear he was acquitted. We all remember the case where the stovepipes had to be taken down during a blizzard, and as there was not sufficient skill to put them up again, a home boy had to be dispatched for help and was frozen to death. I think last spring, I read of a case at Fort Qu'Appelle where a farmer transferred his home boy to another farmer, who called at the stable (not the hotel mind you) for his boy, and found he had been so much frozen during the winter that he was unable to walk. We might not have heard of it only for a policeman who took the boy to a hospital, and had to pay the boy's fare, as like the Priest and Levite of old, he ought to have gone by on the other side. This winter comes the affair at Indian Head, where a home boy with fingers and leg frozen was being started off in the train, when the humane station agent noticed him and had him attended to. Perhaps worse than all, is the affair you published last week, where a home boy near Grenfell was frozen to death in a stable, while he who should have taken care of him was feasting at a ball. How is it, Sir, that we hear of none but these poor boys getting frozen, for I have never heard of any boys who live with their parents getting frozen, except the little fellow at your school, when the master sent him out to wash his hands in the snow. It is evident that these boys ought not to be brought off the comparatively warm streets and given out to cruel people, without any neighbor being allowed to interfere, without rendering himself liable to the law for tampering with other people's employees. These matters will only get abroad, but I do not believe our climate to be such a respecter of persons as to cut out these poor orphan boys and freeze them, and leave the other children untouched.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
SAMUEL MEER.

CATTLE RUNNING AT LARGE.

To the Editor of The Province.
Dear Sir.—Allow me to draw the attention of the members of the Municipality Council to the importance of passing such legislation as will prevent cattle running at large within the limits of the town. It is not necessary for me to point out that cattle are allowed to run, nor would I have to go beyond the limits of the Municipality to prove that they are decidedly a nuisance. We need a by-law such as will enable us to protect our property when we drive on your market. As matters stand now, we are met by a band of starving cattle, and our sleighs besieged, if hay or grain, we have to look sharp to protect it; nothing but a load of cordwood is safe. I would therefore submit that the Council should pass a by-law preventing cattle running at large, say within the limits of the town. I feel sure that the better class of your townspeople will approve of a measure of this kind, and certainly we country people will appreciate it. Hoping that a hint of this kind will be sufficient.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
FARMER.
